Player Waivers

Waivers are signed by following a web link that is sent to you via email or text message. Here is an example of what to expect. Complete your waiver by following the web address in the messages. You only need to complete 1 waiver. You may only receive 1 of these messages. This is fine, you only need one.

EMAIL:
From: Official Scorer <support@cushionedcork.com>

Hello, Babe Ruth (babe@gmail.io).

This email provides a personal link to your online waiver form for tournaments or other seasons this year in SAN DIEGO BASEBALL. Your information is automatically filled in. Please correct any errors, and include your phone number to receive texts.

Please view your waiver form by clicking the link below.

Online Waiver (This link expires on Mar 15, 20xx)

You may also paste this link in your web browser:
http://sd.proscorebook.com/w/7obexys

Sent from: Jim Tapper from the website sd.proscorebook.com

This email may end up in your spam or junk folder, so please check there if you are expecting this email and it does not appear in your inbox. You may click on the link "Online Waiver", or copy the link text and paste it into your favorite web browser. NOTE: The link above is a demo, and will not actually work.

TEXT:
From: +1 (833) 379-0847

Babe, here is a personal link to your waiver for this year/tourney:
http://sd.proscorebook.com/w/7obexys (expires 03-08)
San Diego Baseball

The text message is signed from "San Diego Baseball". In the message, the link may or may not be active, as it depends on your phone service. But you can always copy and paste the address into your favorite browser.

Both Email and Text versions use the same web address, so follow either one. You may complete the waiver on your phone, tablet, laptop or desktop computer. The bigger screens are easier to read, but they all work.